BIG DAMAGE SUIT BEGINS IN U. S. COURT IN RALEIGH

Ware-Kramer Company Seeking to Recover $1,200,000 From American Tobacco Company---Case Will Probably Last Several Weeks.

Raleigh, June 13.— The trial of the famous $1,200,000 damage suit of Ware-Kramer Company, vs. American Tobacco Company, for the alleged exercise of trust methods of stamping out the competition that Ware-Kramer Company was giving them in the cigarette manufacturing business, began in the Federal Court here today Judge Henry Connor presiding; and is to require several weeks in the opinion of judges and lawyers in the case. The morning session was marked by the selection of the jury and the reading of the complaint and answer.

The jurors are Robert W. Wright, Franklin county; Joseph P. Burke, Chatham; J. David Womble, Chatham; W. P. Bremar, Moore; Kenchern Taylor, Northampton; Barnes Daniels, Jr., Wilson; Daniel Long, Person; W. F. Garris, Richmond; Phillip Lee, Wake; Franklin Barber, Wayne; J. M. Parrish, Johnson; Jno. Powell, Warren county.

The complaint recounts a long series of acts on the part of the American Tobacco Company designed to destroy the plaintiff as a competitor, including the substitution of American Tobacco Company goods for Ware-Kramer goods in a shipment of several car loads of cigarettes to China. In this case the Ware-Kramer Company received payment for their goods but their agents claim to have found later that it was American Tobacco goods that actually reached jobbers and with which the trade was supplied. What became of the Ware-Kramer goods does not appear. Also there is the W. M. Carter incident in which Carter, who is a party defendant in the suit, is charged with having gotten into the Ware-Kramer business as a stockholder and manager of the sales department and systematically worked to decrease the prestage and sales of the Ware-Kramer Company by taking men from territory by circulating damaging reports about the affairs of the Ware-Kramer Company. The American Tobacco Company denies all these charges and sets up the further contention that the things charged in the main, if they transpired, as alleged, were more than two years prior to the institution of the suit and are, therefore, barred by the statute of limitations controling such matters.

Appearing as counsel for the plaintiff: are C. C. Daniels, F. A. Woodard, F. D. Swindell, of Wilson, N. T. Green, Norfolk, F. S. Spruill, Rocky Mount. Counsel for the defendants are Junius Parker and W. R. Perkins, New York; F. L. Fuller, Durham, H. G. Connor, Jr., Wilson; and Aycock & Winston, Raleigh. Both Samuel Kramer of Durham and F. D. Ware of Richmond, who headed the Ware-Kramer Company are here for the trial.

Judge Connor assured the jury of his intention to look as well as was possible to the comfort and convenience of the body during the three or four weeks of trial ahead of them and insisted that the jurors must steer clear of undue influences in this case and consider the evidence presented without regard to who plaintiff or defendant are. He gave notice if there should come to his attention any effort by anyone to influence the jurors he will deal with them to the limit of the law, as such an offense would be especially insufferable.

Reports from Rome indicate that Pope Pius is soon to fill the several vacancies in the college of cardinals. A consistory is expected to be held at the close of the civic celebrations in Italy. One American cardinal will be nominated. The choice is believed to lie between Archbishop Farley of New York, Archbishop O'Connell of Boston, Archbishop Quigley of Chicago and Mgr. Falconio, the apostolic delegate at Washington.

FUNERAL OF HUBERT MORRIS WILL OCCUR THIS AFTERNOON

J. C. Morris arrived in the city last evening with remains of his son, Hubert Morris, whose sad death in the Neuse river at New Bern was mentioned yesterday morning. The remains were carried to the family residence, 203 North Mendenhall street, from which the funeral will be held this afternoon at 4 o'clock, conducted by Rev. E. K. McLarty, pastor of the deceased.

Following the funeral services the remains will be interred in the family plot in Green Hill cemetery, the following acting as pall-bearers: C. D. Benbow, Jr., Ed Benbow, Clark Crutchfield, Lowery Stafford, Wyeth Long, Walter Smith.

The body of young Morris was recovered late Monday afternoon after a search lasting several hours. It was taken to an undertaking establishment and prepared for burial, the bereaved father leaving shortly afterward with the remains for Greensboro.

The details of the tragedy are about as given in yesterday's Telegram. The excursionists had lunched at Wilkinson's Point, 20 miles from Newbern, and afterwards several decided to take a swim.

Morris and Wiley were both expert swimmers and were in advance of the rest. Soon they reached the treacheous current and Morris threw up his hands and sank, Willey meeting the same fate a moment later. The launch was at once headed in their direction but reached the scene too late to rescue either of the young men.

NEGROES WANT CITY TO CLEAN UP ALL DISORDERLY HOUSES

Municipal court yesterday morning was the scene of the most hotly contested legal battle witnessed in some time. Another of the women alleged to be keeping disorderly houses in the city was on trial and had employed able counsel to argue her case. The respectable colored residents of Warnersville, the southern suburb of the city where these disreputable houses are located, exhibited their earnestness in the attempt to prosecute the undesirable residents of the district by employing counsel to assist in the prosecution.

Bertha Gibson, a negress, was the defendant in the principal case on the dockt. The evidence of members of the colored Baptist church of that vicinity was largely circumstantial, and by fighting the charge on technicalities the defense, though not able to ward off conviction, secured the short sentence of 30 days in the workhouse. Nevertheless, the defending counsel appealed to Superior Court and the defendant went to jail, in default of a $50 bond.

The case against Florence Hanks and Minnie Williams, who were tried for the same offense Monday morning and on whom judgment was suspended until yesterday, was again postponed and the decision of the court in the case will be delivered next Monday.

Joe Gary, a negro, was arraigned on the charge of passing a worthless check in payment of a board bill. The man plead illiteracy as his defense, declairing that he could neither read nor write. Te toutly contended that he did not know what was on the check he is alleged to have signed. After the hearing of the evidence he was bound over to Superior Court and, failing to give the required $50 bond, he was consigned to jail to wait trial.

The drunks are again beginning to frequent police circles in daily increasing numbers, as if to even up the month of May when they were on their good behavior. D. L. James and George Poots, two old offenders, were found by the police yesterday in the happy stage of drunkenness and together they occupied the calaboose to recuperate from the effects of the little jaunt. They will face the charge of drunkenness in court this morning.

GAILEY

Says That Steel Trust Broke up Cut Throat Methods of Manufacturers.

Special to Telegram.

Washington, June 13.—James Gailey, testifying in the steel investigation today admitted that before 1900 agreements were made between the manufacteurers of steel products, the Carnegie Company participating, with fines for violations of the agreements. He "imagained," he said, that the fines were divided pro-rata between the parties to the agreements. All agreements, pools, cut-throat methods and fines were stopped by the trust, he said.

GRAND CHAPTER ORDER EASTERN STAR MET YESTERDAY

Raleigh, June 13.—The sixth annual session of the Grand Chapter Order of Eastern Star of North Carolina met in the hall of the Masonic Temple in this city this morning at 10:30.

The order will continue in session until tomorrow night, holding morning afternoon and night sessions.

Before the Grand Chapter went into business session there was a short musical program with an address of welcome and the response. Major R. H. Bradley, Grand Tiler, was master of ceremonies and made every one feel at home and perfectly welcome to the city and the Mason's hall here.

Rev. R. Petty Eubanks, of Raleigh made the address of welcome. He spoke enthusiastically of the work of the order and felt that it was the most beautiful and appropriate institution for the ladies far better than the Mason, though it was their sister lodge.

Mrs. Sallie M. Boettcher, of Elizabeth City, Associate Grand Matron, made the response, which was well expressed and referred to the work done during the year.

RECIPROCITY BILL TAKEN UP BY SENATE YESTERDAY

Four Different Reports Made by Members of Finance Committee --- Democrats Favor Original Bill---A Hot Fight is Looked For Before Vote is Taken.

Special to Telegram.

Washington, June 13.—The reciprocity fight in the Senate opened this afternoon with four different reports from the finance committee submitted to the Senate for consideration.

Chairman Penrose, Republican, for Pennsylvania, presented the bill, simply announcing the bill returned to the Senate with the Root amendment attached without recommendation. Senator La Follette, Republican, of Wisconsin, presented a minority report, declaring the measure unfair to the farmers and discriminating in favor of the manufacturers. Senator McCumber, Republican, of South Dakota, one of the bitterest enemies of the measure, handed in a separate report condemning the bill. The Democratic report, approving the original bill as it passed the House, condemning the Root amendment, was presented by Senator John Sharpe Williams, of Mississippi, this report being endorsed by Kern, of Indiana, and Stone, of Missouri.

Senator LaFollette bitterly attacked the bill, syaing that he would offer amendments, reducing the cost of living to consumers two hundred millions of dollars.

The Senate will hardly vote on the measure this week as there will be a number of heated discussions among the Senators representing the different factions in the Senate.

Clark Opposes Root Amendment.

Washington, June 13.—Speaker Champ Clark tonight issued a statement in which he says: "I have no hesitancy in stating my own opposition to the Root amendment. On its face it looks fair, but I know that to adopt that amendment will be to throw away entirely the benefits we would derive from the reciprocity treaty, so far as wood pulp and print paper are concerned. My guess is that Root's amendment will meet a frigid reception in the House."

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE STATE GOOD ROADS ASSOCIATION

Advocates of Improved Highways Gathered In Winston-Salem—Reports of Officers Encouraging—Several Enthusiastic Speaches Made.

Winston-Salem, June 13.—The annual meeting of the North Carolina Good Roads' Association convened at the court house this morning at 10:30 o'clock with fully one hundred delegates and citizens present. Other delegates arrived this afternoon and more are expected.

Mayor R. I. Dalton, of Winston, then welcomed the delegates to the city in appropriate manner, speaking in highest terms of the men who are interesting themselves in the development of permanent highways in the various sections of the state.

Mr. J. A. Wellons responded to the address of welcome, stating that all of the delegates were "glad to be in Winston-Salem One of North Carolina's most progressive cities." He stated that the association was engaged in one of the most progressive movements in the state; that education along any line was a great thing but that education in the cause of good roads was especially commendable as it touched nearly all phases of activity.

He declared that good roads link the cities closer together, aid the schools, increase the value of farm property and cause greater development in the rural sections than any other factory.

Mr. J. L. Patterson, president of the association, made his address which was most enthusiastically received. He thought there should be more interstate highways. He closed his address with a tribute to the splendid work being accomplished for the cause of good roads by Dr. Joseph Hyde Pratt and Mr. H. B. Varner.

Dr. Joseph Hyde Pratt, secretary of the association, made his report reviewing the work of the association since its organization ten years ago and more especially its work during the past year. The attendance at the annual meetings has grown from 3 to 7 to from 75 to 300.

The afternoon session convened shortly before three o'clock and after reports were made by Messrs. W. E. Rutledge, J. T. J. Battle and Leonard Tufts, representing the Yadkin, Guilford and Moore county association, President Patterson introduced Hon. J. H. Small as "one of the greatest good roads enthusiasts in the state and one interested in all transportation problems." Mr. Small declared the good roads movement to be the greatest economic movement in North Carolina today and one so closely related to the state's industrial, agricultural and commercial interests as to deserve the most practical consideration.

Colored Moving Picture Show Gets in The Limelight

At yesterday afternoon's meeting of the Board of Commissioners a delegation appeared and asked that the board declare the colored moving picture show on East Market Street a nuisance, and proceed at once to have the same abated. Another delegation was present also and contended that the show was conducted in an orderly manner and was, therefore, not a nuisance. After hearing both sides for some time the board took the matter under advisement and will probably decide today. Some time ago a protest was made against the place and the police were instructed to keep a sharp lookout for signs of disorderliness.

DEVELOPMENTS IN JAMESTOWN MURDER CASE ARE EXPECTED

With able detectives working on the case it is quite probable that startling developments will soon occur in the Jamestown murder case and in fact these developments are expected at any minute. During the past two days there have been numerous rumors regarding the case and the people of Jamestown have been anxiously awaiting some definite step on the part of the detectives who have been brought into the case.

The county officials here are keeping on the lookout for developments, but are not actively at work, leaving this to the county officers in and around Jemestown and the detectives in the case. While they would make no statement one way or the other it is believed that at first the county officials strongly suspected suicide, but now that a faint clue has been discovered they are willing to admit it was murder. The coroner's jury has not yet rendered a verdict, but it is quite likely that that body will meet again within the next few days.

Yesterday's High Point Enterprise has the following regarding the murder:

"There have been some suspects in the case arising from such a thorough investigation. A white man and negro, who are suspected, and whom it was reported got off the train here one night, since the tragedy have been shadowed and were last seen at Gibsonville. It is thought that from certain circumstances which point to a strong suspicion that an arrest will probably grow out of this investigation if these parties are caught. "On inquiry from Chief of Police, late this afternoon, at Gibsonville, he informs the Enterprise that he held a man by the name of Chas. Cameron, who has been in Gibsonville for several months, and who had not been working, but the secret service men didn't arrest him. The man Cameron was originally from Connecticut, and left Gibsonville today taking the regular mail train.

Those who go to the root of the Root amendment to the Reciprocity Bill will find evidences of the slick work of the "interests" there.

The chauffeur is one man who can blow his own horn without being charged with improper effort to draw the attention of the public.

There is work for the Weather Man to do in this section, but he does not seem to care for the job of sprinkling the face of the earth.

Columbia State does not believe that snakes bite blind tigers. Nevertheless, snakes are often the occasion of trouble for the patrons of blind tigers.

Bill Lorimer is adding insult to injury by scattering a million copies of his speech of defense in Illinois. If the people of that State submit to this they will be labeled as willing to stand for anything.

The Durham Herald says that Senator Simmons can vote against the Reciprocity Bill and then come back home and explain his action; but the Herald makes this remark in a way which indicates that there is at least one North Carolina newspaper which will be slow to accept his explanation.

The Columbia State thinks the temperature would be higher if Roosevelt were President. That may or may not be true, but if Roosevelt were President there would be more language floating around than at present and the temperature of his words would doubtless be higher than that of the language of the present occupant of the White House.

Greenville, S. C., Piedmont has heard that a home for the friendless is to be established in this city and wants to know if it will be for baseball umpires. In the first place, no home for the friendless is to be established in Greensboro; but, in the second place, if such a home is established in North Carolina, it will be for the Charlotte team.

The dry weather has probably injured the blackberry crop, also. In fact, it is difficult to sum up all the harm resulting from the drought; but no item of the summing up will be of more interest to country newspaper men than the one in regard to the blackberry crop. Country editors are as fond of blackberries as preachers are alleged to be of chicken.

The Catawba County News is giving Greensboro and Guilford county much valuable mention since the editor of that paper and the Catawba farmers returned home from their trip to this city. The members of the party are writing letters to the News and in such glowing praise of this city and county that is likely to cause many of the Catawba farmers to have a desire to remove to Guilford.

CRITICISM OF THE NEWSPAPERS

The favorite pastime of a number of people—not a majority, of course, but a respectable number nevertheless—is criticism of the newspapers. They are charged with being unreliable, even untruthful; they are either too sensational or not yellow enough; they are too large or too small; they print too much or too little of this, that or the other kind of news or reading matter. These are a few, a very few of the criticisms one hears of the newspapers. There are a hundred other forms of criticism, all of which is largely undeserved.

Newspapers as a whole are reliable and truthful and their contents are fairly well balanced in an effort to print something of interest to all classes of readers. Newspaper publishing has not reached a state of perfection, and will not do so while men are fallible and the source from which newspapers derive most of their information—which is the public at large—is as unreliable as it is known by newspaper men to be. Newspaper men as a rule are honest and honorable and they are accurate in handling details. In the latter respect they have the average business or professional man bested almost immeasurably. In view of the high pressure under which all daily newspaper work is done it is remarkable that newspapers are so accurate and make so few mistakes. Daiy newspaper work is a grind; newspaper men work like machines day after day, and the amount of work many of them turn off would be sufficient to cause the average business man to be laid up with nervous prostration after a month.

People who criticise newspapers for their shortcomings, mistakes, lack of enterprise or for other imagined or real reasons, are people who are unfamiliar with newspaper making. Were they acquainted with the business in all its details, or even in a few particulars, they would marvel that newspaper men accomplish so much work and do it so well. Newspaper men often chafe under undeserved criticism, as men belonging to other classes of workers are likely to do; and occasionally the newspaper "comes back" in a mild manner at its critics. The Norfolk Ledger-Dispatch, in a mood of this nature, has this to say in regard to criticism of newspapers:

"We often wonder if the people who casually pick up the daily newspaper, glance hurriedly over a few headlines, and indulge in some unripe criticism, ever stop to think of the conditions under which the paper is made and of the labor and effort that goes into it.

"The trained lawyer, the doctor and the technical man generally, never stops to reflect that the newspaper reporter cannot be complete master of all professions and sciences, and that the necessarily hurriedly prepared news must be very different from the carefully prepared thesis or essay upon a given subject."

So good a paper as the Baltimore Sun in replying to a criticism of one of its news items says:

"The mass of matter that the modern paper is obliged to handle imposes upon reporters and editors a task of extraordinary difficulty. No reasonable outsider who has been inducted into the inner problems of the newspaper office can fail to get a new view of the difficulties with which journalistic workers struggle. The handling of sixteen-page paper dealing with everything, 365 days in the year, is something that the facile critic of the club window would find much less simple and easy if he were a little closer to it. It would be very interesting to see how the average college professor, or lawyer, or minister, would make out if a big piece of news were put in his hands at 12 o'clock at night and he were called upon to edit it and write the heads within a half hour's time. To get the right number of words and letters in the head to make the headlines tell the story accurately and with the delicate shades of meaning, to eliminate the contraditions, to correct the English, to place the story in that part of the paper that befits its importance—these are some of the details of the work that must be done under the highest pressure. Thoughtful people who have had an opportunity to familiarize themselves with the work of the newspaper office have usually come to the conclusion that, instead of the unreliability that is so much talked about in uninformed quarters, the press has developed a skill and dexterity that are remarkable, and that the average modern newspaper really measures up to a high standard of accuracy and general excellence."

The Senator From North Carolina.

The Senatorial election in North Carolina is beginning to warm up with the weather. Senator Simmons is "sawing wood," as they say down in the Valley of Humility; Governor Kitchin has been traveling around the State a great deal making excellent speches about one thing and another; Chief Justice Clark recently delivered an address at the Elon College commencement on National issues that has caused a great deal of talk among the masses; former Governors Jarvis and Glenn come out for Aycock, who is possessing his soul in patience ready for the call which it is hoped the people of the State which he has honored by his service will honor him and now it is said that General Julian S. Carr may enter the race.

Simmons is a little off on lumber, Clark is disposed to exceed the speed limit in reaching after the things which all the alleged "progressives" insist are necessary to the safety of the country, and Kitchin has been abundantly rewarded for all that he has done for the State. It would look to an unprejudiced outsider without any axes to grind that if the North Carolinians are entirely at themselves when the primary election is held they will make the choice of Aycock so nearly unanimous that there will be no second choice; indeed it would be a great triumph of good politics if all the rest should withdraw in his favor on the ground that what North Carolina needs in the Senate at Washington is North Carolina's strongest and best men, and his name is Aycock—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

This Section is Busy Growing.

The prospective war between the Guilford commissioners and the Greensboro folks as to which should settle the costs of defendants sent to the county roads has been amicably adjusted. That vicinity is too busy going to the front to permit even a semblance of internal discord. —Charlotte Observer.

MRS. NATION'S START.

Woke Up One Morning to Find Herself And Hatchet Famous.

One mild June day in the year 1900 a nice, motherly-looking, elderly woman, with a tinge of gray in her hair stepped out into her back yard in Medicine Lodge, Kan. She was the wife of a local lawyer, and she herself was a physician. Usually her countenance was as mild as that June morning, but as she appeared that day an observing neighbor would have noticed that her face was a cloud-bank and from her eyes flashed unwonted lightning.

The good woman selected from a rubbish pile half a dozen bricks and wrapped them in old newspapers, along with four heavy bottles. Then she got into her buggy and drove to the neighboring town of Kiowa. When she returned at night she no longer had the bricks and bottles, but she had established an international reputation. In Kiowa she had smashed three saloons with her crude ammunition and delivered a temperance lecture from her buggy. Thus Carrie Nation burst into renown.

Mrs. Nation had long brooded over the evil of the liquor traffic. Her husband, the lawyer, assured her that the Kansas saloons were violating the law and that their property, being used unlawfully, it was perfectly legal to smash it. Thereupon she took the law into her own hands. Following her Kiowa debut she bought a stout hatchet and started on a tour of general destruction.

The hatchet, the emblem of destruction, became known abroad as well as at home, for she crossed the ocean to preach her doctrines, though only once did she test the police of Europe by a concrete use of her emblem. She suffered untold abuse and ridicule; she was called a lunatic and an anarchist. But her fanatic belief in her mission was as strong as that of John Brown. She declared that her death by violence at the hands of the liquor sellers would be the means of ending the traffic. And at the end of a nine-year campaign she retired with money enough to buy a farm in Kansas. Indeed she lived to see a widespread prohibition wave sweep the country in which she swung her hatchet.

Speechmaking was a part of Carrie Nation's natural endowment. "When a girl of 12 down on her father's plantation in Kentucky," says one, "she would assemble the slaves at their quarters and deliver what was virtually a sermon founded upon a text from the Bible, which she always carried with her. Since then her Bible had been her closest companion and whenever newspaper photographers asked to take her picture while in jail she always stipulated that it must be with her Bible in hand. They were allowed to arrange the remainder of the cell with hatchets, broken glass and timbers to suit themselves."

Mrs. Nation was thrown out of the White House in 1903 while she was trying to get an interview with President Roosevelt. Then she went to the Capitol and disturbed the Senate, whereupon she was arrested and fined $25. In 1908 she visited Europe, where the chief incidents of her tour were an arrest in Newcastle-on-Tyne for saloon smashing and an egging in a London music hall.—New York Tribune.

You might as well trust a girl as not because you'll never know anyhow.

The Heat in Reidsville.

E. M. Redd tells us that on Sunday at 2.30 p. m. the Government thermometer in his yard registered 105. He says since he received these government thermometers ten years ago none of them ever before had reached as high as 100. The "oldest inhabitants" acknowledge that Sunday was a record-breaker for this section of the country.—Reidsville Review.

An Appeal to Colored Teachers.

To the Colored Teachers of the City and County:

The 12th annual session of the State Summer School is in progress at the A. & M. College. Thirty or more experienced and successful instructors have been employed to give you valuable hints and helps upon how best to do the work in which you are daily concerned. These instructors are among the best in the State; they represent some of the most prominent of this country and of Europe; the instruction they are daily giving cannot fail to help and strengthen your school room work. While we have secured these instructors at considerable expense, you can enjoy all of the advantages for the next three weeks at an expense of only one dollar.

In addition to this, noted educational leaders such as Hon. J. Y. Joyner, Dr. J. I. Foust, Prof. M. C. S. Noble and others will deliver a series of lectures that will be rich, suggestive and inspiring. While the lectures are all free, every thoughtful teacher who heard Dr. J. L. Mann's lecture last Friday will place a higher value upopn that one lecture alone than the one dollar which we are charging for all privileges of the Summer School. Can you afford to miss these rich privileges? Do you understand that few if any teachers anywhere else in the country have had such opportunities offered them at their doors at such low cost? Ask the teachers who are in attendance and every one will tell you that if you have any aspirations or ambitions as a teacher, you surely cannot afford to remain away. Then come and surely you wil be better prepared to strengthen the schools of Greensboro and of Guilford.

WHITE RAT BOA SHOCKS HOTEL.

Plaza Orders British Officer's Wife to Discard Rodent.

New York, June 13.—Mrs. Mortimer Hancock, wife of Capt. Mortimer Pawson Hancock, of the British army, stationed at Bombay, India, daughter of Dr. S. M. Battle, U. S. N., of Asheville, N. C., and cousin of former Assistant District Attorney George Gordon Battle, has been creating commotion in the lobbies and dining rooms of big hotels for the past three days. Twice she has appeared in different hotels with a sleek, fat, white rat which answers to the name of James cavorting about her neck.

The latest appearance in public of Mrs. Hancock and the rat was at the Waldorf Saturday shortly after noon.

At the first public appearance of the two—at the Plaza, Thursday night—there came near being a small feminine riot.

There was a hurried conference of hotel officials, and it was decided that Mrs. Hancock must be requested to keep her rat out of sight if she were to remain in the hotel. Mrs. Hancock seemed hurt when this news was conveyed to her and with the greatest reluctance she secreted James in her bag.

Mrs. Hancock's career has been a romantic one. Reared in Asheville as Madelon Battle, she was regarded as the town's belle. Often she was a guest of the Vanderbilt's at Biltmore. Suddenly she abandoned her life of social pleasure, came to New York and enrolled as a nurse in the Presbyterian Hospital.

Then came rumors that she was to marry Cecil Graham, a wealthy young Englishman. These rumors were denied. Finally on July 2, 1904, she was married at Biltmore to Captain Hancock, of the Royal British Fusiliers.

SNAKE BREAKS UP BALL GAME.

Six-Foot Reptile Creates Panic Among 500 Spectators.

New York, June 13.—In the ninth inning of a game of baseball between the Mohawk Athletic Club, of Richfield, N. J., and the Alert Club, of Centerville, this afternoon a big blacksnake made his appearance and glided across the diamond, creating much excitement among the 500 or more spectators and the players on both sides.

The snake emerged from a pile of underbrush as Frank O'Malley, pitcher for the Alerts, was delivering a ball. The score was then a tie, with two men out. Sight of the snake unnerved O'Malley, and he let go of the ball, which struck "Brad" Norwood, the man at the bat, on the head.

Norwood fell, and there was a rush by many to get out of the way of the reptile. The game was forgotten. A few of the braver ones seized bats, started for the snake and at last got him cornered. It took at least a dozen blows from the bats to dispatch the visitor.

The snake was more than six feet in length.

WHERE IS CASTRO?

State Department Still at Sea as to His Whereabouts.

Washington, June 13.—The State Department is still at sea as to the whereabouts of Cipriano Castro, the exiled President of Venezuela, whose return to his native country the department, with the co-operation of the Venezuelan government, is endeavoring to prevent. Conflicting official reports are pouring into Washington. One states that he boarded the steamer Legazzi at Cadiz and disembarked at Las Palmas, Canary Islands. Another expresses the suspicion that an incognito passenger on that ship when it touuched at Costa Rica was Castro. Suspicion has also fallen upon a ship in Haitian waters formerly named Umbria and now known as the Consul Grostuck.

PESTS IN HARRIMAN PARK.

Seventeen-Year Locusts Attack Foliage in New York Preserve.

Stony Point, N. Y., June 13.—Harriman Park, the $5,000,000 preserve given to New York State last year by Mrs. E. H. Harriman and other wealthy New Yorkers, has been attacked by an army of the seventeen-year locusts. Throughout the park the air is resonant with the buzzing.

Flying from tree to tree, the pests attack the foliage with an energy that appears corroborative of their long period of idleness under ground. They fasten on the tender second-year shoots and in five minutes a twig a foot long will be furrowed and burrowed for its whole length. At intervals of about half an inch holes a quarter of an inch deep are bored, and in these are laid hundreds of tiny white eggs about as big as the head of a pin.

The twigs die within a few weeks, leaving the trees badly scarred.

NEEDS STABLE SYSTEM.

South Has Suffered Under Present Financial System.

Atlanta, Ga., June 13.—"No part of the Union needs a stable, sound financial system so much as the States of the South," declared Congressman F. B. Vreeland, of New York, vice chairman of the National Monetary Commission, in addressing a banquet tendered to him by the business men of this city yesterday at the Capital City Club.

"The South needs a financial system that will furnish an abundance of capital at reasonable and steady rates," continued Mr. Vreeland, "and this is especially pronounced in the cotton States. Great has been the development during the last twenty years, but much greater will be the development in the years to come."

Mr. Vreeland pointed out the serious effects of the periodic business convulsions that have swept the country and declared his belief that the American people are now convinced these money panics are due entirely to our defective banking and currency systems."

ANOTHER WONDER OF SCIENCE.

Biology has Proved that Dandruff is Caused by a Germ.

Science is doing wonders these days in medicine as well as in mechanics. Since Adam lived, the human race has been troubled with dandruff, for which no hair preparation has heretofore proved a successful cure until Newbro's Herpicide was put on the market. It is a scientific preparation that kills the germ that makes dandruff or scurf by digging into the scalp to get at the root of the hair, where it saps the vitality; causing itching scalp, falling hair, and finally baldness. Without dandruff hair must grow luxuriantly. It is the only destroyer of dandruff. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

One dollar bottles guaranteed.

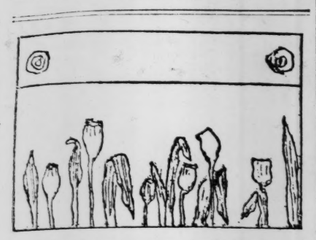
HAND-PAINTED CARDS

PRETTY REMEMBRANCES FOR THE NATAL DAY.

Nothing More Welcome Can Be Offered Friend Than Something That Is One's Own Work—Two Good Designs Here.

Perhaps you number among your friends or relations some one who has a birthday this month. If so, let me suggest that you send a handmade birthday card to the one who is growing old.

The simple drawings before you should be traced on cards or paper.



With delicate colors they should be painted, and an appreciative verse written as your good wish.

Pale yellow and green can be used on the border of tulips. The little verse should be written at the top.

The side arrangement of ribbon and roses is another style. Blues and pinks and yellows can be used. Indeed, the real colors need not be adhered to strictly. Any delicate "blossomy" effect will do.

Then there is a card with the trees in bloom. Pale green, covered with pink blossoms, gives a lovely effect.

This is a delightful little orchard to send to your friends.

The wreath and ribbon can be done in a favorite color. Yellow and pale green, pink flowers, white and green with colored ribbon are suggestions for coloring.

Here are some little verses to inscribe:

The daisies peep from every field,
The violets sweet odor yield;
The purple blossom paints the thorn,
The stream reflects the blush of morn.

The newborn May,
As cradled yet in April's lap she lay.
Born in yon blaze of orient sky,
Sweet May! Thy radiant form unfold,
And wave thy shadowy locks of gold.

'Tis like the birthday of the world,
When earth was born in bloom.
The light is made of many dyes.
The air is all perfume.

Hebe's here. May is here!
The air is fresh and sunny:
And the miser-bees are busy
Hoarding golden honey.

Wreaths for the May: for happy spring
Today shall all her dowry bring—
The love of kind, the joy, the grace.
Hymen of element and race.

For thee, sweet month, the groves green liveries wear,
If not the first, the fairest of the year.
—Exchange.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

Grass linen in lace striped effects is new among the linens and cottons.

Linen and mousseline in the striped patterns will be used for blouses.

Street suits of fine French dark blue serge are having a tremendous vogue, all more or less trimmed with fancy narrow and wide braids, soutache and rat tail, not to mention buttons and button loops, as well as quillings and pipings of satin.

The many shell combs and pins which have been so fashionable in the past are not seen now. Bands are, of course, the newest hair ornaments, but they are much narrower, and, when becoming, are placed well to the front and close to the head.

Oriental Effects.

Among the laces favored by Paris are point de Milan, Flanders, Florentine and torchon. Where Irish crochet is seen it is in the venise patterns. As for embroidery, French knots are distinctly the thing, whole patterns being worked out in them. Colored embroidery on lingerie waists is much seen, Egyptian, Arabic, Turkish and Balkan effects being aimed at. Open embroideries in Madeira and English eyelet styles, continue in favor. The English is frequently accentuated by outlining the design with soutache. No floral patterns are shown, the oriental effects holding the field entirely.

To Darn Linen.

When you are hemming new table linen save the strip you cut off, and later, when the linen must be darned, pull this strip into threads for the purpose.

FROM CENTER OF FASHION

Handbags are shown to match costumes, being formed of the same fabric and color. Fabric bags, in other words, are to have the upper hand this spring, sometimes combined with leather, the leather forming a skeleton through which the fabric shows.

The new bags are large and have long cord handles. Many are trimmed with fringes and tassels. Crochet cord ornamentations, embroidery, braiding and cordings are seen on metal cloths, antique brocades and printed and plain linens.

Plain leather belts are fashionable, especially in black and white. Black patent leather is also combined with bright red, blue, pulple and yellow.

The new belts have deep points running from the front toward the back, and almost encircling the figure. Simple metal buckles are used with these belts, principally in dull silver and gunmetal, to go with the black and white.

Many of the new buckles imitate the buttoned effect, really fastening by a clasp, but seeming to do so by means of buttons and buttonholes. Other buckles are seen in translucent colored enamel.

DOTTED VEILS BACK AGAIN

Cobweb or Shadow Meshes Used by Those Who Follow the Prevailing Styles Closely.

Chenille dotted veils are in again, and cobweb or shadow meshes are still distinctly the proper thing. Woven, chenille or velvet dots are seen, or novelties such as a black veil in alternating blocks, two inches square, of different meshes, the whole run over with a floral design in white silk. The same idea is shown in black on white, and black-and-white combinations as a whole are in favor.

Filet meshes, both in plain square mesh and in complicated hexagonal designs, or in star patterns formed by vertical and horizontal threads, are favored by the modish dame de Paris. Lace veils are also worn, especially in black and white.

Fancy scarfs in net and chiffon with printed borders in color remain in style—and long may they flourish! One new idea is a chiffon scarf in flat artificial flowers applied in an irregular border. Wild roses of thin silk on a green satin scarf is another beautiful Parisian novelty. Embroidered ends are also stylish, the embroidery being often combined with round and spindle-shaped cotton beads.

ALL ADORNED WITH FLOWERS

Innumerable Designs for Millinery Trimmings Have Found Favor With Parisians.

Would you know the flowers that are being made by the thousands over in Paris so that they may blossom out on the millinery of the Frenchwomen?

First of all, there are the small June roses in pink, rich red and yellow shades.

Violets are answering the call and are now being sold in all shades of purple, yellow and white, if you wish.

Lilacs in white and lavender; wistaria in its graceful, drooping form, and delicately tinted hydrangeas are here to be massed on crowns or to form huge bunches on large straw shapes.

Moss roses and lilies-of-the-valley are so frequently combined on a hat that these flowers are sold in bunches over in Paris already massed in their white and colored forms.

Poppies in the light pink, the deep red and the glowing yellow colors are to be picked from the counters in single and double form. Cerise velvet poppies, immense in size, for the hat with only one flower, are much in demand.

SIMPLE PORTFOLIO.

It can be made in art serge, cloth or American cloth, lined with canvas and bound at the end with braid or narrow ribbon.

The small sketch on the right-hand side shows it open to its full extent, and that portion marked "A" should be stiffened with cardboard, sewn in between the cover and the lining.

SENATOR STONE IS TAFT LEADER

Missourian Likely to Handle Reciprocity Measure.

DEMOCRATS TO PUSH FIGHT.

Situation Will Be Different From What It Was When the Last Tariff Bill Was Under Discussion—Williams of Mississippi Is Expected to Take Part In the Coming Debate.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, June 13.—(Special.) It is likely to develop that the Taft leader in the senate is William J. Stone of Missouri. Although Senator Penrose reported the Canadian reciprocity bill and will push it along as the senator in charge, the defense of the measure will devolve upon Democrats.

It has been evident for a long time that Stone has been fitting himself for the position of leading the fight for the bill. He has been urging speedy action upon it and has taken a very active part in favor of the bill during the hearings. He also has had many and extended conferences with President Taft on the subject.

Stone and the president are very good friends. Stone is a "Tafter," as members of the party are designated who made the trip with Taft to the Philippines a few years ago.

Will Be a Contrast.

The situation in the senate during the consideration of the Canadian bill will be in great contrast to that when the last tariff bill was under discussion. At that time Democratic senators were severely criticised for allowing the burden of opposition to the Republican program to be carried by insurgent Republicans. It was said that several Democratic senators lost an opportunity to make reputations for themselves.

Such will not be the case during the next few weeks, for not only Stone, but Williams of Mississippi and many other Democrats, will take a prominent part in the discussions. Senator Bailey, who would be the natural leader in tariff matters on the Democratic side, will be opposing the bill, but he will have only a small following.

A Near Discovery.

A witness before the senate finance committee was moving along in a monotonous sort of manner and remarked that the flying machine was the latest device for handling sized timber.

"Do you mean to say that you handle your timber with a flying machine?" asked Senator Gallinger, with amazement.

The witness explained that it was a spar 120 feet high with cables, which replaced the old donkey engine.

Seeing Washington.

The spring and summer months have brought thousands of sightseeing tourists to Washington. There has seldom been such a rush of visitors to the capitol. When congress is in session the galleries are filled with strangers who for the first time observe the national lawmakers at work. There is every prospect that visitors to Washington will enjoy that privilege for several weeks, if not months.

Bailey's Choice.

"When I leave the senate," said Senator Bailey, "I will become either an editor or a law professor. My inclination is to become an editor, for I believe I can do more good in that line of work."

This remark was injected into the hearings on the Canadian reciprocity bill. The Texas senator no doubt thinks he has a mission and that he would give the world great truths. It would be interesting to note a newspaper war between Bailey's paper and that of a journal published at Lincoln, Neb.

In the same discussion it was developed that Senator Smoot was the owner of one newspaper and was interested in others. He said he did not write for his paper. "If I owned a paper," said Bailey, "I certainly would write for it."

Almost Forgotten.

In some manner the subject of denatured alcohol was injected into a senatorial discussion, and different senators pointed out that the impression seemed to be that the bill was to bring fortunes to thousands of people—yes, millions, especially the farmers—throughout the land, and yet no one seemed to know of a single advantage that had been accomplished by it.

At one time there was about to be as great a contest for the authorship of the law as there is for the credit of originating rural free delivery. Everybody claims to have been the pioneer in that innovation, but now no one seems to care who was responsible for the denatured alcohol law.

Back Numbers.

Sitting side by side on a senate sofa not long since were Tom Power and Fred Dubois. Power was one of the first senators from Montana, and Dubois became a senator from Idaho two months after the state was admitted. Those were new states not so very long ago, and yet that pair on the senate sofa were back numbers. They were associated in one of the greatest filibusters the senate has known, in 1893, when the silver men tried to defeat the repeal of the silver purchase law.

SENATE LEARNS ABOUT PAPERS

They Are Told How Editors Do Their Work.

QUESTION OF NEWS VALUES.

General Manager of the Associated Press Tells Why Certain Facts Are Not Worth Printing—Public Antipathy to Newspapers Is Developed by Inquiry Before Committee.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, June 13.—(Special.) Members of the senate committee on finance learned more than they ever knew before concerning the newspaper business on the day when the hearings on the reciprocity bill closed. The senators discovered, among other things, that news associations are not permitted to color the news or make partisan reports. They also found that they had been mistaken in a number of matters regarding the publishing business and the methods of gathering and distributing the news.

One important fact that they learned upon inquiry was that a newspaper was not obliged to print every dispatch sent to it just as it was sent; that such a dispatch could be edited, cut down or thrown away; also that the news associations and the correspondents were not responsible for the headlines.

What Should Be Published.

Although not pertinent to the hearing, there was a discussion as to what newspapers should publish. The general manager of the Associated Press explained to Senator Bailey that if a pastor of a church should preach fifty two sermons according to the doctrine of John Wesley there would not be news in the sermons, but if he should make an infidel plea it would be news.

The Texas senator was of the opinion that it would be better if the papers should print the good and leave out the bad, but other members of the committee recognized that papers were printing what the public demanded.

Stood Out Prominently.

What stood out prominently in the hearings was the general dislike of public men for the newspapers. How generally this is known there is some doubt, but no one can have read the hearings or the speeches or heard men talk about the Canadian reciprocity agreement without fully realizing that there is a general antipathy toward the newspapers, that they are tolerated as a necessary evil because they are protected by the constitution, but that upon the whole they are regarded as an agency of misrepresentation.

That is especially the attitude of a large number of men who oppose the Canadian agreement and hold the newspapers responsible for pushing it forward. The same feeling toward the so called muckraking magazines brought forward the proposition to increase the rates of postage on periodicals. The debates on the reciprocity bill will develop still further the bitter feeling of senators toward newspapers.

A Root Paradox.

One day when the senate showed that there was still a deadlock on the election of a president pro tem. Senator Root remarked that it was a good thing to show the country that the Republicans did not control the senate.

"While a majority of the senate are Republicans, there is not a Republican majority," he paradoxically said. In explanation he added that a majority of the senate called themselves Republicans and were Republicans on many questions, but on many others they were wide apart. As those questions upon which they divided were now uppermost in the minds of the people and subjects of legislation there was not a Republican majority in the senate.

What He Said.

When Melville E. Stone of the Associated Press was before the finance committee Senator La Follette questioned him as to why the reports of Colonel Roosevelt's western tour were so meager. After explaining an unforeseen circumstance that tended to curtail the reports Stone added: "If you remember, senator, the colonel said only two really important things on that trip. At El Paso he said he was against the recall, and a short time after at Los Angeles he said he was for the recall."

"Climatic changes," sententiously remarked Senator Williams.

Long Standing Pair.

For a long time Senator Tillman has been paired with a Vermont senator. First it was with Proctor, and when he died Dillingham became the pair of the South Carolina senator. Although much in evidence when he was in good health, Tillman was absent more or less during his early career, as he was often on the lecture platform.

Cullom a Wonder.

Day after day we marvel at the vitality of Senator Cullom of Illinois. He is in his eighty-second year, and yet he continues to attend to his senatorial duties with fidelity. He is at his office in the foreign relations committee early and stays late. He has regularly attended the meetings of the finance committee for weeks during the long drawn out hearings, and he is in his seat in the senate day after day. For a man of his years and strength he is a wonder.

Society Girls Play Baseball With Boys Who Wear Skirts

Photos by American Press Association.

GIRLS as baseball players are usually considered as jokes, but the feminine members of the Belfield Country club, a fashionable Philadelphia organization, are able to put up a game of which they are not ashamed. Every year a contest between the girls and the boys forms a feature of the formal opening of the outdoor season. Last year the girls won by a score of 9 to 5, and this year the struggle resulted in a tie, each side scoring thirteen runs during the six innings played. In order to handicap the masculine players they were compelled to wear linen skirts, and they were also compelled to use their left hands in throwing. These two requirements certainly were handicaps. The girls also had a man as catcher, it having been found that the pitcher, Miss Coralie Peale, threw balls that no other girl could catch. This masculine catcher—he is shown sitting down at the right of the lower picture with the other members of the team—was named Percy Osborn, but when he donned a blond wig and became a girl his name was changed to "Polly." The upper picture shows Miss Helen Evans sliding for home, with "Polly" trying to tag her out. The game attracted a large crowd and was greatly enjoyed.

"Madam, what ails this child?" asked the stern person in the seat opposite the squalling baby.

"Aw, let the woman alone," said one of two 'rah, 'rah lads one seat back, "that's its class yell."—Buffalo Express.

The Eyes and the Voice.

A physician in London, Dr. William Martin Richards, has had occasion to observe a relation existing between the eyes and the voice and has recently made a statement of two cases that came under his treatment where actresses who had lost their voices completely recovered them when treated for defective eyes and fitted with proper glasses.

He tells of one young woman in whose family eye diseases were hereditary who found herself at the age of twenty-two losing her voice. Her eyes were found to be in need of attention and when she had been supplied with glasses she promptly recovered her singing voice.

When she discarded the glasses some time later and her eyes were once more neglected her voice also relapsed into a husky state that precluded all singing. This practitioner has observed a number of similar cases and the discovery of the relation between the eyes and the voice should certainly be valuable to stage folk and others who depend largely upon their voices for their status in the world.

FIRELESS COOKING FOR DOGS

Cooking the dog's food had been rather a difficult problem in our household, either because the kitchen range was otherwise occupied or because the cook was, and the long, slow cooking necessary for cereals and tough meats was seldom accomplished without friction. Now we put the meat and bones, with enough water to cover them, in a fireless cooker receptacle, bring the contents of the pot to the boiling point in about five minutes, and then pack the kettle away in the fireless cooker for five or six hours. The meat is then tender enough to peel from the bone, and more water is added, and whatever cereal we wish to use. The whole mass is once more brought to the boiling point, and put back in the cooker. In another four or five hours we find a supply of richly flavored food that keeps fresh in a cool place for several days. The dogs seem to enjoy the food prepared in this way, and we are sure of its being thoroughly cooked, and never scorched, and the time occupied in the kitchen is minimized.—Country Life in America.

HE'S A COMPETENT ADVISER

Farmer's Son Ran Away to the City and Now Edits an Agricultural Paper.

"It is greatly to be regretted," was remarked in the hearing of a farmer, "that farmers' boys do not stick to the farm. It seems as if scarcely any of them do.

"Oh, I dunno," said the farmer. "I've raised eight boys and they're all farmers 'cept one."

"Is that so? Only one of them caught by the glitter of the city, eh?"

"Yes, that's all. Poor Rob would go, spite of all I could do—run away to the city when he was 12, and we ain't never seen him since, though it's been over 20 years. But I dunno but it's all right; he hadn't no likin' for farm work, nor wouldn't take no interest in it. He jes' naturally seemed to hate the farm, and didn't know enough about farm work to drive ducks to water."

"Yes, I think it was better that he should leave the farm, as he evidently had no taste for it. Is he in the mercantile business?"

"Oh, no, nothing of the kind," replied the farmer; "for the last ten years Bob has been editor of an agricultural paper. He writes the 'Hints to Farmers,' 'How to Do Farm Work,' 'Stick to the Farm, Boys,' and such things."

Animals on the Stage.

Although human actors often fail to arouse enthusiasm, animal actors never appear without being appreciated. At the Hippodrome a boxing kangaroo and a troupe of unusually well-trained monkeys keep the audience in gales of laughter while their act is on. I cannot imagine a more grotesque animal on the stage than a kangaroo. This one is the most famous of its kind in the world. He boxes with the skill of a trained pugilist and ducks his head and evades a blow with a suggestion of real thought. The kangaroo belongs to the clown Armando, but it is Mrs. Armando who teaches him how to box. It is not easy to train a kangaroo. To punish one would be disastrous, because of the natural tendency which he has toward suicide.—Harriet Quimby in Leslie's.

DAILY MARKET REPORTS

WEATHER FORECAST.

Eastern cotton belt generally fair.
Western cotton belt generally fair.

Government Weekly Weather Review.

Washington, D. C., June 13.—Precipitation occurred generally over the eastern portion of the cotton region, except that no rain fell at a few stations in central Georgia. Over the Central and Western portions no precipitation occurred, except scattered light showers in Mississippi, Tennessee, Southeastern Louisiana, Southern and Western Arkansas, Central Oklahoma and at Houston, Clarendon and Spur, Texas. More than two inches occurred in parts of South Carolina, Georgia and Florida. Mean temperatures were from one to twelve degrees above normal throughout the cotton growing States, the region of least excess being alongside Atlantic Coast and the greatest in Oklahoma. Mean temperatures ranged from 70 to 82 degrees over the eastern, from 82 to 86 degrees over the central and from 80 to 88 degrees over the western portion of the cotton region. The lowest mean temperature was 70 degrees at Asheville, N. C., and the highest 88 at Fort Worth, Texas. The maximum temperatures were above 100 every day in many localities in the central and western portions.

Times Democrat on Cotton Situation.

New Orleans, La., June 13.—The Times-Democrat says:

Recent advances in the value of the new crop cotton contracts have cooled the ardor of trade buyers, but yesterday's rainless weather map and a long distance forecast on fair weather during the week stirred up the talent and speculative operators bought enough fall deliveries to lift the market sharply. Later on somebody heard that rain was falling at El Paso and in Pecos Valley, both of which are several hundred miles west of the Texas cotton belt. Nevertheless the market sold off a little on the simple fact that "Moisture" and "Texas" were linked in the same breath. As yet very few operators believe that actual and important damage has been done by drouth in the West, but many express extreme apprehension over the situation because everybody knows that rain is needed and most folk realize that a continuation of present climatic conditions would spell disaster. In the older States east of the Mississippi River, where experience and the use of fertilizers have to a large extent overcome the eccentricities of the weather, abnormal climatic developments do not strike the trader with the force or the crop with the ill effect that abnormal weather changes do in the West.

Cotton Letter to J. E. Latham.

New Orleans, La., June 13.—The weather map this morning shows very important developments. There has been a cool wave bordering on Texas since last Saturday and it held out some prospects for possible showers at a few points. It was the only chance for any precipitation. The map today shows that this cool wave has lowered the temperatures over the Northern border of the cotton belt but also that it is blending with the high temperatures in the South, without producing rain. Consequently prospects for general rains are further removed than ever, except North Carolina which may benefit slightly by the New York, storm, as a portion of the Atlantics has done over night, some good rains having occurred in the Augusta, Savannah and Wilmington districts.

Liverpool was disappointing this morning, probably on false reports of rain and cold weather, such as were circulated yesterday. Our market experienced some bearish pressure at the opening based on the disappointing Liverpool and lower temperatures in the Northern belt. It should be borne in mind that it is not the temperature which injures prospects but the absence of rain. Communication with New York being disturbed on account of the storm was also a factor in the easiness this morning, then the market expects a bullish weekly government report at noon and as usual there may be much realizing on it which bear scalpers anticipate by selling ahead. Official records show temperatures average of 102 degrees for the State of Texas yesterday. 18 stations show 100 to 104 degrees. Not a drop of rain in either Texas or Oklahoma. We mention this particularly in order to put our patrons on guard against false reports, it having been circulated yesterday that it had rained at Temple, Texas.

Derivation of Word "Caucus."

As to the origin of the word "caucus" there is much diversity of opinion. It has been traced to a North American Indian word "kaw-kaw-kas," meaning to talk, giving advice or instigate, whence came "caucorouse," a chief. More often, however, it is explained, as English, a corporation of "calkers' meeting" and here again there is a variety of choice. One version tells of meetings of the Boston dockyard calkers to elect delegates to represent their grievances against the English soldiers. Another makes it a term of opprobrium, "calkers" standing for humble folk generally. A third explains that it was in a calkers' meeting place that the Boston politicians assembled.

Her Part in the Task.

It is a wise child who never provides unwitting fun for his elders, but it is a rare child who never makes remarks that set these elders thinking. A devoted leader of the suffrage cause sometimes illustrates a possible point by the story of a little country boy set to picking early strawberries for the family table with the strict injunction: "Now, I want to hear a steady whistle coming from the patch all the while you are at work."

At supper time the strawberries were portioned out, and the smiling boy received an extra share. His little sister thereupon protested that she should be served as liberally as her brother.

"But Willie picked the berries," she was gently reminded. "You didn't help to pick them, did you, dear?"

"No," was the unexpected answer, "but I whistled while Willie did!"

Would Destroy One Joke.

Locks of every imaginable kind have been invented, but there is now on the market a keyless door lock that is rapidly taking the place of the lock of the old style, Harper's Weekly notes.

These keyless locks do not appear, at a glance, to differ greatly from the ordinary lock. They have a fancy plate and a knob and they can be placed on any door. Instead of the key and keyhole, however, there is a particular bit of mechanism beneath the knob, with four to six little levers, which can be pressed or raised to unlock the door. The owner or person who has a right to enter can be given the combination and the lifting of one or more of these little levers, one or more times, just as may be arranged, will release the bolt and the door will open. The closing of the door will lock it and a certain lever will release it if it is worked from the inside. Numerous combinations may be had and these can be changed at any time.

SIDNA ALLEN GETS THIRTY MONTHS IN ATLANTA PRISON

In the United States Court yesterday morning Judge Boyd pronounced sentence on Sidna Allen, the white man against whom a verdict of guilty was returned on Monday night. Allen was sentenced to two and a half years in the Federal prison at Atlanta and fined $500 and costs, the latter amounting to something like $1,500. An appeal was taken and Allen's bond was fixed at $5,000, which was promptly furnished.

It will be remembered that Allen was tried on the charge of perjury, the government contending that he swore falsely while on the witness stand in United States court last June, at which time he was on trial on the charge of counterfeiting. Allen's accomplice, Prieston Dickens, plead guilty and was sentenced to two years in the Federal prison, his guilt being more firmly established by the testimony of Allen, who shifted the responsibility on Dickens' shoulders. Later it developed that he testified falsely and the indictment for perjury was secured.

Allen is considered the wealthiest man in Carroll County, Va., and will fight the case to the last 'ditch." He has able counsel and will make a desperate effort to have the decision of the lower court reversed or a new trial granted.

Miss Adams Entertains.

Miss Gena Adams was the charming hostess at a delightful reception given last evening 8:30 to 11:30 o'clock in honor of her house guest, Miss Florence Boatwright, of Danville, Va. About fifty young people gathered at the hospitable home of Miss Adams, on West Market street, and for three hours enjoyed themselves immensely. The doors of the Adams home were thrown wide open and the merry young people took possession of the house and rested on settees upon the lawn.

Many varied and intereresting amusements were indulged in by the guests. Chief among these was a guessing contest that engrossed the attention of the visitors for some time. As numerous popular airs were played upon the piano, by correctly recognizing the titles of the various tunes, a very interesting little romance was formed that gave the names of the hero and heroine, and all the events that finally culminated in their happy marriage. For the correctness of his answers and the excellence of his novel. Paul Clement was awarded the prize, a handsome scarf-pin.

Throughout the evening delicious punch was served to the guests by Miss Elsie Ward. Refreshments, consisting of ice cream and cake, served during the progress of the party, added greatly to the abundant happiness of the visitors. At a late hour the entertainment was abandoned with many thanks to the geniel hostess who had helped her guests pass such a pleasant and memorable evening.

NORTH STATE CAPITAL NEWS

Special to Telegram.

Raleigh, June 13.—This is the month for the renewal of the licenses and registration of automobiles in this State and it is estimated that there will have to be not less than 20,000 entries of one sort and another in the Department of State before this week is over. There are 2,596 automobiles registered and all of these will have to procure renewals before July 1 or be subject to penalties. The number of the last machine registered was 2,697, this being issued today. However, the numbering started at 100 and there is one number—1313—that was canceled for an automobile owner in Charlotte and another and more "lucky" number substituted after the machine had killed one person and happened to a number of other serious mishaps. What made the No. 1313 more objectionable to the gentleman to whom it was allotted was the fact that the registration was made and the license issued on Fraday.

State Senator R. R. Cotton, in the city from Pitt county, says that the outlook in his section is for only about a third of a crop of tobacco. The lack of rain prevented the successful transplanting of the tobacco plants. While it has been very dry, owing to the exceptionally thorough preparation of land, there has been nothing like the damage by drought to other crops, one would ordinarily expect, he says.

Information comes to the State Department of Education from Superintendent R. B. White, of the Franklin county public school is that another local tax district has just been voted by the people. It is for Cedar Creek district and the improved schools will have three teachers.

There has just been christened in the Church of the Good Shepherd here little William Ruffin Cox, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert L. Cox, and grandson of General William R Cox, distinguished Confederate general and member of Congress for several terms. The christening was by Rt Rev. Joseph Blount Cheshire, great uncle of the child. General and Mrs. Cox were here for the ceremony as was Hamilton C. Clairborn of Richmond.

A "wild" woman, living out in the open field and having a mattress and bedquilt stuck away in a cave to sleep on, was taken in custody yesterday by Township Constable D. Byrum and has been sent to the county home for vagrancy. She gave her name as Adelaide Stephenson. She was roving about the country just west of the city almost devoid of clothing when her case was reported to the authorities by people living in the locality.

ALL IN THE COOKING

MUCH CARE NEEDED IN PREPARATION OF ASPARAGUS.

Delicious Vegetable Worth All the Time and Skill That Can Be Given It—Many Different Ways of Serving.

Asparagus is one of the dishes which cooking can make or mar. It has always been esteemed a great delicacy. It was the favorite vegetable of the ancient Romans and was introduced by them into Britain. It is much more generally used in France an England than here.

Fashion has decreed during the past few years that asparagus must be served cold at up-to-date social functions, but on the home table hot asparagus cooked en branche or cut up in a cream sauce will never go a-begging.

By most people the simplest way of cooking asparagus is considered best, says the Delineator. Cut off the toughest ends of the stalk where it is white and woody, and bind the remainder of the stalks together with a strip of muslin. Immerse the stalks in boiling salted water, with the tips projecting two inches above the water. In this way they will steam tender, while the rest of the stalk is cooking. Boil until tender, but not mushy, and serve with white sauce, drawn butter, mayonnaise bechamel or Hollandaise sauce as preferred.

A French woman eating asparagus takes a stalk at a time in her fingers, dips the head in the cream sauce, and daintily nibbles her way down the stalk as far as it seems tender. In this country it is usually served on buttered toast, each slice being dipped in the asparagus liquid.

For those who would cling to asparagus cooked as mother used to cook it, the directions are simple. Cut the tender portions of the stalks into half-inch lengths. Simmer in boiling salted water, only just enough to cover, until tender; then season asparagus, liquid and all, with milk or cream, butter, salt and pepper, and serve on toast or in deep saucers. In this way the whole delicate and distinctive flavor of the asparagus is preserved.

Canapes of asparagus make a dainty entree, and, though adopted from the French, find increasing popularity here. The foundation of the canape is the same, no matter what the filling may be. Take slices of bread about two inches thick and stamp them out into neat rounds with a biscuit cutter. With a smaller cutter mark a circle in the center of each round and scoop out the crums to the depth of an inch, taking care to leave the sides and bottom quite firm. Arrange these in a shallow dish and pour over them a half-pint of milk, to which a beaten egg has been added. Then take up very carefully and slip into a kettle of boiling fat. They will brown almost immediately and must be removed when a pale golden brown. Some cooks prefer to drop them at once into the hot fat without the milk-and-egg bath. Drain on soft paper.

Quail or Squab on Toast.

Take as many birds as required, pick, draw, wash thoroughly and dry. Set giblets in boiling water until needed. Rub each quail or squab thoroughly with salt and pepper, have good piece of butter melting in deep stewpan, put birds in and brown nicely on all sides, then add enough sherry wine to keep from burning, then your giblets, a small onion, clove of garlic, and some dry mushrooms all cut very fine with a dash of mace. Cover tight and set on slow fire; test with fork and when nice and tender put quail on a platter with toast cut V shape, add more sherry and water (half and half); thicken slightly, cook for five minutes, pour over birds and toast and send to the table.

Sauted Green Tomatoes.

Select smooth tomatoes, not quite half ripe, wash and cut into slices about half inch in thickness; drain, dry and dust with salt and pepper, egg and crumb the slices; put three tablespoons of oil or drippings with a bit of butter for flavor in a frying pan, turn and brown the other side. Remove from pan with cake turner to retain shape, place on heated dish and serve with Hollandale sauce.

Spinach Salad.

Take one-half peck of fresh, crisp spinach, wash thoroughly in several waters, put in steamer and steam for about 10 minutes; turn into a colander and drain; then chop fine, season with salt, pepper and two tablespoonfuls of melted butter; mix well and press into small molds or cups. When cold place each form on lettuce leaf and put one spoonful of good salad dressing on each.

Cup Custards.

A pint of milk should make half a dozen small cups, and three eggs should be enough; beat the eggs with three tablespoonfuls of sugar until light and creamy; add the milk slowly, stirring well; fill the cups about three-q rters full, grate a little nutmeg on top, first flavoring with a teaspoonful of vanilla or almond or lemon or rose—anything best liked.

To Remove Iron Rust.

Lemon juice and salt mixed together may be spread upon the spots and the article laid in the sun. Repeat the operation if necessary. Starch may be spread on the article instead of salt. When dry wash out in clear water.

WHEN MARK TWAIN WAS A BOY

Trip of the "Innocents Abroad" Compared With the Cruises That Are Made Today.

When Mark Twain, in company with about 100 other "innocents," made his famous cruise abroad, their progress from port to port on this novel, floating hotel, was followed with interest by the entire country. At present half a dozen great steamers, each carrying from two to five times as many tourists, are on cruise in different parts of the world. This attractive method of travel has become a fixed institution. It is curious to contrast the arrangements of this first cruise of the "Innocents Abroad" with those of today, nearly half a century later. The Quaker City, the side-wheel steamer on which the first cruise was made, carried a few more than 100 passengers and offered only the most essential accommodations.

The first Mediterranean cruise cost $1,250 per passenger, with many extras. The advance in safety and luxury of steamers has been marked by a corresponding decrease in the cost of transportation. Today one may encircle the globe for less than one-half the fare paid by the "Innocents," while a long trip to the Mediterranean, exactly duplicating that of the Quaker City, with a hundred added luxuries, costs only about one-fourth as much. Ther are at present four large steamers, on a single line, carrying together 1,400 passengers, cruising in the Mediterranean, South America and the West Indies. Each of these ships is in daily communication by wireless telegraph and cable with New York, while the daily newspaper, printed aboard, keeps the tourists constantly in touch with the latest news.

Mark Twain, it will be remembered, grew eloquent in describing the dining-room, 50 feet in length, which seated more than 100 passengers, and the melodeon used for concerts and religious services. Today, however, half a thousand tourists can dine together in a palatial cabin, to the accompaniment of a stringed orchestra and enjoy a cuisine and service equal to that of the best hotels ashore. Despite the limitations of the Quaker City, the cruise proved the most satisfactory of all methods of travel and foreshadowed the popularity it would enjoy in the future.

Women Will Work for Peace.

The determining part to be played by women in the war against war is clear. The militant women we know today are the mothers of the women of tomorrow. These women will no longer be merely the "ministering angels" of the past to nurse the wounded in battle, to weep for the dead. They will make their influence potent in the conduct of the nations, and that influence will be for peace.

But how?

Never forgetting their ultimate aim, always realizing that they must occupy a place in the councils of men, as equals of men, let women lay to slumber their individual present aspirations and widely awaken their broader humanitarian aspirations for an achievement infinitely longed for, not alone by them, but by all humanity alike.

Henceforth, in the home, the school, society, women must advocate with all their powers the union of nations in a compact that shall usher in the dawn of a lasting universal peace. Through all mediums let them work, into all existing institutions let them inject that spirit. Let them create institutions if those that exist do not suffice.—Madeline Black.

Something of a Task.

The officer manager turned to the new boy.

"Here, George," he said, "go into the next room and look up 'collaborate,' I'm not quite sure about the spelling."

The boy disappeared and didn't return. The manager put the letter aside and took up some duties. Presently he remembered the boy and went out to look for him. He found the lad studying the big dictionary with great intentness.

"What are you doing, George?" he asked.

The boy looked around.

"I forgot the word you told me, sir," he replied, "an' I'm lookin' through the book to find it."

The manager gasped.

"How far have you got?"

"I'm just finishing the second page, sir."

"That'll do, George."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Disqualified.

One boastful woman who thought herself an ardent suffragist was surprised to learn that other members of the sisterhood did not share her opinion.

"Why do you doubt my devotion to the cause?" she asked. "What have I done to make you think me less earnest than the rest of you women?"

Their answer was a letter which she had written to headquarters the day before.

"You wrote on your husband's stationery," they said. "No suffragist who is worth her salt will write a personal letter under her husband's letterheads."

Expert Opinion.

The Angler—Is this public water for fishing?

The Native—Oh, aye!

The Angler—Then it won't be a crime to land a fish?

The Native—No; it 'ud be a blooming miracle!—The Tatler.

LIFE WAS STRENUOUS

THINGS NOT ALWAYS PLEASANT IN THE STONE AGE.

Glance Backward at Domestic Tribulations of the Cave Dweller Should Make Us Thankful Times Have Changed.

Away back in the days of the cave dwellers life must indeed have been a strenuous proposition.

After you'd chased an antelope 39 miles through the woods and killed it with a stone hatchet with an edge like a grindstone you had to carry it home 39 miles and dissect it with a piece of flint that was as sharp as a Rugby football.

If company came to dinner you couldn't boil a can of soup in a kettle and serve the delighted guests with something that made their mouths water. Not much you couldn't.

Instead you'd follow your cave-dwelling wife into the back part of the cave, and she'd say just like your wife does today:

"Fool! Idiot! Wretch! The very idea of your bringing people home when you knew there wasn't anything in the house to eat!"

Then you'd go out where the company was twiddling its bare legs and say:

"I'm awfully sorry, ol' man, but there ain't anything to eat in the house. Just make yourself at home, and I'll run over on Stone river and see if I can't kill something." You couldn't even give him that old song and dance about the grocer not coming.

You'd have to wander about in the jungle, and finally, if luck was with you, you'd kill something—it didn't matter what. You'd hurry home, and your wife and the guest would be on the friendly footing of the walrus and an algebraic proposition, and the way she looked at you would make cold chills run up and down your spine.

It's different these days, and much as we lambast the canners of lima beans and tomatoes and ham and things, we have to admit that it beats the stone age all hollow.

If you bring a friend home unexpectedly, of course, your wife will look at you as though you'd contemplated skinning the baby or robbing a Sunday school of its collection, but she'll be able to dish up something!

If everything else fails she can call up the drug store and get some ice cream, and lie to the guest, saying:

"It has been so hot we don't eat supper now. We usually have cream."

For times have changed since the stone age, and many of us, forgetful of our blessings at other times, must recognize that we are fortunate peoples, when the times comes for a comparison of conveniences.—Dallas News.

For Art's Sake.

"Look pleasant," said the photographer.

The sitter raised his eyes and gave a sickly smirk.

"Your head just a little bit more to the left, please," suggested the voice from the black shroud. "No, don't move the eyes."

Like a man suffering from a stiff neck, or an Eiffel tower collar, the sitter tilted his head gingerly till it reached the desired angle, and he resembled a dying fish trying not to mind.

"That's very nice—very nice, indeed," said the photographer. "Stay just there while I make the exposure." He removed the cap as he spoke and counted out one and three-fourths minutes. "Thank you, sir," he then observed. "You can get up. I'm afraid you've been sitting on your hat."

"My hat," roared the sitter, angrily, regarding the flattened felt. "Why, the dickens didn't you tell me I was sitting on it?"

"My dear sir," protested the photographer blandly, "that would have spoiled your expression"

Chivalrous Raphael.

All along the woman had maintained that her little Italian cobbler was sharp as a tack. The quickness with which he caught on to who Tetrazzini is and what she does upheld her contention. He had never heard of Tetrazini and he did not know the meaning of sing, but all the woman had to say was:

"Italiano woman—sing—la, la, la, la, la, la," and a glow of comprehension lighted his eyes.

"Ah, schiamazzree," he said. "Italiano woman do that?"

"Yes, fine," said the woman.

But when she looked up "schiamazzare" in an Italian dictionary and found that it meant to cackle like a hen her opinion of Raphaelo as a linguist and a cavalier underwent a revision.

Not a Fighter.

"My father," the host says, "carried that sword."

The guest examines the blade with interest, and discoverers a stamped statement thereon, to the effect that the sword was made in 1899.

"What war was your father in?" he asks.

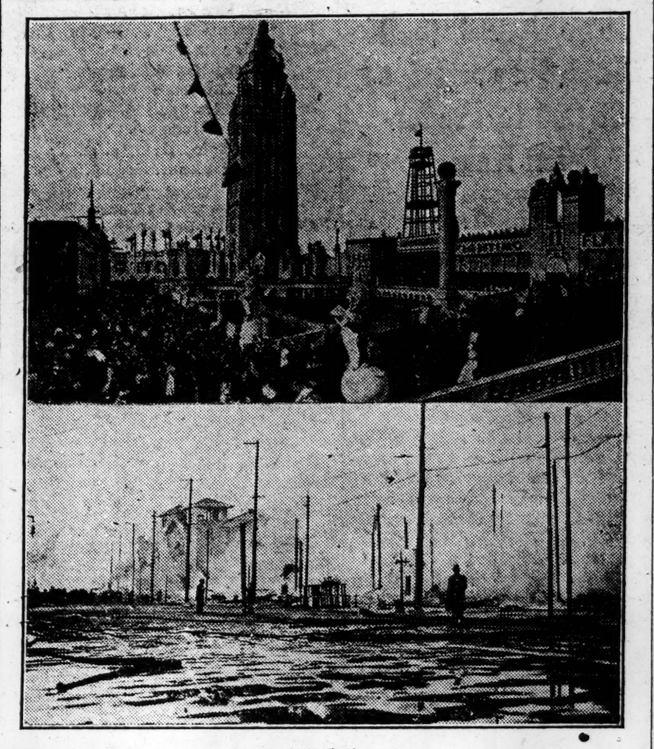
"War? Oh, father wasn't in any war! He was a traveling salesman for a regalia house."—Judge.

How Rumors Start.

"What's this about sewing your unfortunate wives up in sacks?"

"Nothing to it," replied the sultan, emphatically. "I did get 'em some bobble skirts."

Coney Island's $5,000,000 Fire Turned Into Profit by Showmen



Fire photo by American Press Association.

CONEY ISLAND is unique in many ways, and one of its most prominent characteristics is the great resort's optimism. Before the ruins of Dreamland and other amusement enterprises had ceased smoking the task of turning the disaster into a profit had been started. The ruins were searched for relics that could be sold as souvenirs. Twisted bits of metal, small china articles that had been partially fused by the heat, pieces of plaster—all these were collected and sold. A crowd estimated at from 300,000 to 400,000 flocked to the island the day after the disaster and visited the shows that were doing business or watched the ten acres of ruins that had marked the spot of the world's most expensive amusement section. The body of Black Prince, the huge lion that had escaped into the crowd as Dreamland burned, was placed in a tent, and thousands paid to see it. Coney Island set its eyes on the future and paid no attention to the past. It is not likely that Dreamland will be rebuilt. It cost about $4,000,000 and had never been tremendously profitable. There was only $500,000 insurance, and this was carried as part protection for a mortgage of $750,000. Owing to the flimsy character of the buildings the insurance rates were prohibitive. The loss in the region covered by the flames was total; nothing was left. The picture shows a view of a section of Dreamland before the fire and what it looked like after the firemen had got the flames under control.

NOT WARNED BY HER PEARLS

Empress Eugenie Did Not Profit by Superstition Attaching to Her Bridal Necklace.

Various are the superstitions attached to precious stones, and the prognostication of the lady who commented on the Empress Eugenie's bridal pearls has certainly ample justification in later years.

"It was a Spanish lady," says Jane T. Stoddart in her biography, "who as she admired the pearl necklace worn by the youthful sovereign quoted with melancholy foreboding that proverb of her country, "The pearls which women wear on their wedding day are a symbol of the tears which they will shed.'

"I think it is Maeterlinck who says somewhere that luck really means the possession of a sixth sense which warns one of coming disaster or danger. The Empress Eugenie must surely been possessed of the faculty, though alas! she did not profit by it.

"Strangely enough the empress' first act after her marriage showed that her mind was brooding on images of death and sorrow. At the beginning of her honeymoon at St. Cloud she asked Napoleon to drive her to Versailles and there she inspected with mournful interest the rooms of Marie Antoinette in the Little Trianon.

"On returning to Paris the imperial pair visited the Archives Nationales and read Marie Antoinette's last letter, written from the Conciergerie on the morning of her execution. Eugenia in later years made a collection of relics belonging to the hapless queen."

The Universal Pet.

Everybody must have a pet. If you haven't a baby, you must at least own a dog. If it isn't a dog, it may be a cat or a kitten. In other lands it may be a monkey. I have even known of those who have alligators as pets—little ones, of course. Perhaps this explains why, on a single Sunday, 40,000 men, women and children, principally children, will flock into the Zoological garden at Bronx park in the northern part of New York city. This may explain, too, why, in a single calendar year nearly one million and a half visitors at the park take time—and do it with pleasure—to visit what is known as the finest zoological exhibit as well as the largest in the world.—Harriet Quimby, in Leslie's.

Visiting Cards for Dogs.

A novelty in Paris is the lapdog visiting cards. "Poms" and pugs which go visiting with their mistresses in fashionable circles in Paris are to have their own tiny pasteboards tucked away in little pockets of their outdoor coats. Such dogs have two sets of cards, which are left on other dogs at the houses where they are calling with their mistresses. One card gives the dog's real name and its race, while the other records its pet name joined to the family name of its owner. Cards are left according to the pedigree of the dog visited.

MICE IN THE RAILWAY CARS

Traveling Man Always Carries a Trap, and Catches One About Every Other Night.

"On my last trip across the continent I met a man who showed me a hitherto unsuspected danger of sleeping cars," said the traveling man. "The first night out from Denver he occupied the berth across the aisle from mine. Shortly after everybody had turned in for the night I heard him fussing around and I looked out. He had baited an old fashioned mouse trap with cheese and was leaning out to set it on the floor under his berth. Along in the night I thought I heard the trap click. The next morning I got up ahead of my neighbor to watch his maneuvers with the mouse trap. I felt kind of creepy when I saw him pick up the trap with a dead mouse dangling from the wire noose Later I expressed astonishment at my neighbor's bagging that kind of game on a transcontinental train.

"'Oh, that's nothing,' said he. 'I catch a mouse about every other night in seasons when I am on the road most of the time. I don't know where they make their nests, but there are few of the ordinary coaches that do not carry their share of mice.'

"In Chicago I bought a five-cent mouse trap and set it on the way home, but I did not catch a mouse."

BEAUTIES OF THE SIERRAS

John Muir Eloquently Describes the Charms He Finds in That Mountain Region.

Here with bread and water I should be content Even if not allowed to roam and climb, tethered to a stake or tree in some meadow or grove, even then I should be content forever. Bathed in such beauty, watching the expressions every varying on the faces of the mountains, watching the stars, which here have a glory that the lowlander never dreams of, watching the circling seasons, listening to the songs of the waters and winds and birds, would be endless pleasure. And what glorious cloudlands I would see, storms and calms—a new heaven and a new earth every day, aye, and new inhabitants. And how many visitors I would have. I feel sure I would not have one dull moment. And why should this appear extravagant. It is only common sense, a sign of health, genuine natural all-awake health. One would be at an endless Godful play, and what speeches and music and acting and scenery and lights—sun, moon, stars, auroras. Creation just beginning, the morning stars, "still singing together and all the sons of God shouting for joy."—John Muir, in the Atlantic.

"Do you know, little boy, that your sister promised to marry me at the party last night?

"Of course. That's what the party was for."—Bystander.

GIRAFFE A CURIOUS BRUTE

Though Exceedingly Frightened by Slight Rustle, He Is Quite Indifferent to Loud Noises.

Among the curious characteristics of the giraffe is its strange indifference to loud noises, as contrasted with its peculiar "scariness" with reference to slight sounds. Noisy sounds, like that of a man walking near in hobnailed boots, the giraffe does not appear to notice, but should it be approached by a woman whose skirts give out but the slightest rustle, the sound thereof causes the giraffe to start up with pricked ears and eyes distended in fear.

Officials of a zoological institution, situated near a canal, tell of a curious instance of this peculiarity of giraffes. After a terrible explosion of gunpowder on a barge on the canal, the keepers were astonished to observe that the giraffes took little notice of the tremendous blast. They jumped to their feet, but almost at once laid down again, when they found that nothing extraordinary had happened in their inclosure. But, were a keeper at night to creep along outside that inclosure in his stocking feet, the queer beasts would exhibit such terror that one would imagine them about to dash themselves in terror against the fences.

Giraffes fear the lurking foe, and a big bang scares them hardly at all. To them the faint, rustling sound is a token of the greatest danger. In that respect they are like deer.

On a Pinch.

Rivers (erasing something he has written)—I want to speak of a bald-headed man and I don't want to use the billiard-ball comparison. Can't you think of something not quite so hackneyed?

Brooks—You might say he's as bald as an eggplant.

WHIP HORSEBEATER.

Three Women Pull Reckless and Cruel Driver From His Seat.

Seaford, Delaware, June 13.—Beating his horse and driving at a furious pace, endangering the lives of many persons in High Street Saturday evening while the streets were thronged, James Harper, a Maryland farmer, was dragged from his carriage by three young women, who were enraged at the way he was beating his horse.

The girls first called to Harper to stop beating the animal, and he stopped to answer them, whereupon the horse balked. Seeing his predicament, the young women made a rush for the carriage, snatched the whip, pulled Harper from the vehicle and laid the lash on him until he begged for mercy. He made humble apologies, but seeing the police coming he ran, leaving his team.

ARE MISSING IN MEXICO.

Relatives of Chicago Man and His Family are Alarmed.

Chicago, June 13.—There is much concern among relatives and friends here of James W. Sibley and his wife and two children over their safety. They have been in Mexico for some time, and they have not been heard from since May 18. It is feared they have been thrown into prison by one of the factions in the revolution or perhaps may have been killed by bandits.

Mr. Sibley, formerly a Chicago business man, is president of a company owning a silver mine located in the Tevica camp of mines in the State of Caxaca, about 35 miles southeast of the City of Mexico.

Letters received in April contained alarming reports, and said that the Sibleys had packed their trunks and were planning to leave for the United States. They expected to go via Vera Cruz, but another letter came stating that their escape was cut off.

Despised Thistle a Forage.

It was by accident the western Kansas farmers found that Russian thistles make a good forage crop for cattle. The farmers for years had battled against the Russian thistle pest and the state legislature appropriated money to combat it.

One day after a heavy windstorm a farmer found all his cattle eating Russian thistles that had banked up against a barbed wire fence. The news spread rapidly over the western part of the state and as a result Russian thistles are now harvested with as much care as alfalfa.—Kansas City Journal.

WOMAN BUYING SHOES

THAT IS WHEN FAIR CREATURE IS MOST EXASPERATING.

After Trying on All the Footwear in the Store She Finally Decides That She Will Look Elsewhere.

See, children, the lady is buying a pair of shoes. She has been buying a pair of shoes for an hour, as you can see from the signs.

The salesman waiting on her looks as if he had been run through a wringer, and his collar is wilted.

About the floor, on the perforated-backed benches and on the wide shelf below the stock shelves are many shoes and many boxes.

The lady has one stockinged foot on the near-leather stool and looks pleased, because she has tried on every shoe in the place as nearly as the salesman can figure.

To begin with, she wanted high shoes with light soles and cloth uppers, and though they found a pair that fitted her exactly, she decided on tans instead.

The tans were too small, but the clerk didn't say so, merely observing that they were a little short for her.

Then she decided on gun metal oxford ties, and the clerk swarmed up the rolling ladder and got down seven boxes.

One pair of those fitted her exactly, but the unfortunate salesman had told her they were only $3, and she always got $4 shoes.

Then, having been fitted in gun metal oxfords, she changed about and decided on high shoes with cloth uppers, but with heavy soles.

Having accomplished a perfect fit in these, and having revolved the matter in her mind, she decided that she didn't want high shoes at all. Spring was coming on, and she had seen a beeyutiful pair of high-heeled slippers in the window. Would he get them out for her? Sure.

But she didn't like these on close inspection, and preferred a shade of tan. But tan wasn't so fashionable, and she looked at the black.

Then another salesman came on the scene and assisted, and the proprietor came and announced that he knew just precisely what the lady wanted. They were ordered from the east—might even be at the depot now. Could she come in tomorrow?

And now observe—the lady is telling the proprietor she will come in tomorrow and departs.

The proprietor knows where she is going, and knowing it, sees no use in having her followed.

She is going to another shoe store, because she, having decided she needs new shoes, is in a panic lest she will not get them at once.

And she will get them, too, because such a thing as a lady postponing getting shoes when she has once started to buy is absolutely unheard of.

And in the shoe store the proprietor sighs and points to the scattered shoes, and boxes, and tissue paper, and shoehorns, and two salesmen sigh and begin restoring things to order.

They say nothing, for there's nothing to be said. It's all in a day's work, and they're sorter used to it.—Galveston News.

The New Neighbor All Right.

A young couple newly married had just moved into the house next door, and through an open window Mrs. Bonnamy, screened from view behind the curtain of her own window, was watching the young wife at work straightening things in the sitting-room.

"Good!" she exclaimed, turning away at last. "That girl has been properly trained. She'll do."

"What have you found about her?" asked Mr. Bonnamy.

"I've found that she knows how to use a broom."

"How does she use it?"

"Every three or four strokes she makes with it she turns it in her hand."

"Why does she do that?"

"It's just like a man to ask that question. She does it to keep the broom from getting lop-sided. Wears it out eveniy; last twice as long, don't you see?"

"Why, I didn't know—"

"No, of course you didn't. Neither do half the women," said Mrs. Bonnamy, almost spitefully.—Youths Companion.

Real Tip-Toppers.

Senator Brown, apropos of the marital misadventures of a young multi-millionaire, said at a dinner in Washington: "The trouble is that too many of our idle rich young men think that among their many rights is included the right to do wrong. They are, in truth, as foolish in this respect as the maidservant who said:

"'I've got a place among the tip-toppers for sure this time. They're bang-up aristocrats I live with now.'

"'What do you mean by bang-up aristocrats?' a friend asked.

"'Oh,' she replied, 'I mean places where they have three kinds of wine and the ladies smoke and the men swear.'"

CHANGING OVER A NEGLIGEE

Only a Few Alterations Are Required and You Have Practically New Garment.

A plain negligee of mull or lawn can be taken out of the wrapper class by adding a shaped collar of the material or of a contrasting fabric lace trimmed.

One girl who had a last season long, loose wrapper almost on the Mother Hubbard lines of pink batiste has turned it into a smart negligee to accompany her to a house party.

She found a yard of white Swiss embroidered in a pink dot just a tone deeper than her wrapper. This she cut into a sailor shape collar reaching well over the shoulders, but with long tab ends in front to reach nearly to the knees.

Instead of the square sailor lines, the collar, back and front, was indented by cutting out of each corner an oblong strip two inches deep and six long. In front the collar extended from this notch to form the long stole; in the back it had just the two-inch projection in the middle of collar. The neck was shaped surplice in front.

The collar was edged all around and across bottom of stole ends with Valenciennes lace two inches deep and an inch from the edge; a two-inch insertion outlined the shape of the collar.

The kimono sleeves were sloshed on top and edged with lace with the insertion similarly set. The sleeves and collar were fastened with rosettes of pink gauze ribbon.

SOME NECKWEAR NOVELTIES

Pretty Velvet Tie for Lingerie Blouse —Jabot Made of Plaited White Net.

Ties of narrow velvet, edged with tiny satin flowers continue in favor.

One to be worn with a lingerie blouse is made of an inch-wide strip of Irish crochet. It rounds the neck, crosses in front and falls to bust in round ends. The crossing is held by a bunch of pink satin roses and green leaves, while a wreath outlines each end.

A jabot is made of plaited white net finished with quarter-inch hem at side and inch hem at bottom, with half-inch band of pink mull or other mercerized material on which are worked white coin dots in satin stitch.

A smart tie to wear with turned-down linen collar is made of a narrow insertion of Irish crochet tied in a double stiff bow with strapped knot and two ends falling well below bust line, where they are finished in fringe or crocheted pendants.

Another fashion is to wear a collar and jabot of dotted net or the heavy meshed ecru net bound on the edges with material of the frock.

BLOUSE FOR SPRING WEAR

Collarless Garment That Will Be Appreciated as the Warm Season Comes On.

The new aspects of our old friend, the blouse, are so distinctly attractive that there will be special interest and pleasure in making choice of those which are to complete your spring costumes. The design shown here is one of the best, its Magyar modeling making it most comfortable, while the absence of any collar-band gives still further proof of up-to-dateness, and a welcome freedom for the neck, too, which will be specially appreciated as the season advances and the weather grows warmer. Fancy net is the fabric which is thus advantageously used, the pointed revers being of handsome lace, while the chemisette which appears between is of finely tucked net with pipings and buttons of satin to introduce some dainty touch of color.

Baby's Spring Bonnet.

Spring bonnets for very little babies are made of white liberty satin. They are close fitting, but the satin is fulled on the crown, the band around the face being plain. Embroidered side pieces are set in, the most attractive design is tiny forget-me-not wreaths. Where the ribbon ties are set on there are rosettes of the white satin, in the center of which are tiny rosebuds. There are other bonnets also of the liberty satin, which have full crowns and the satin draped over the straight piece which forms the front. These are trimmed with narrow pink or blue velvet ribbon. Embroidered batiste caps have the tiniest bouquets of pink and blue flowers set on the left side of the front.

PLEASING A PATIENT

SOME GOOD DIVERSIONS FOR THE SICK ROOM.

Must Never Be Forgotten That Immediate Surroundings Exert a Great Influence—Flowers Always an Interest and Delight.

The immediate surroundings exert a great influence upon the general state of the mind and health of the patient. Take a room with the walls of a plain color; the pictures are a source of unceasing pleasure. Have about eight prints; the next week, under the pretense of cleaning, replace the pictures with others.

The patient will discover after a time an entirely different lot hung in their place. Each week the same thing can be done. The patient is sure to take an interest in them, and be glad to talk of them with friends.

A second interest and delight are the flowers. Of course, only living plants would be allowed to stay in the room all the time, but a broad shelf can be attached near the bed, and the patient will love to watch each new leaf and bud unfold day by day. An ever blooming cyclamen and a red geranium are good plants. A glass bowl, with two or three goldfish, are a good idea, as they will interest a patient wonderfully, watching the graceful movements and exhibitions of intelligence.

I heard of a patient who was too ill to read, but a friend brought in some seed catalogues. It was wonderful what a lot of pleasure the patient got out of them. It required so little mental effort to just look at the pictures and read the names, with here and there a description.

It is like greeting old friends.

And the announcement of a new variety of some favorite kind of flowers was quite exciting. As the patient's mind began to regain some of its activity he planned what he would have this year in his garden.

Then he drew diagrams, and laid it out carefully—here the formal garden, here old-fashioned and wild flowers, and beyond the vegetables. Of course, it took endless rearrangements, and he was brought all the illustrated garden catalogues procurable.

It was great fun and amusement. A friend coming in would greet him with: "I've discovered a new variety of such a flower we simply must have." and discussed the garden quite seriously. As spring approached a small box was brought, in which he put two or three seeds of several kinds of flowers. After the third day something pushed through the earth, and nearly every morning there was another seed coming up.

It was exciting to guess which would come up next, or which would get its second leaf first. When bigger a few of the seedlings were planted in pots and kept on the window shelf. When they came into bloom he was proud of them. Fond as you may be of plants that are given you those you have watched grow seem much more your own.

FOR MEASURING THE DROPS

Useful Hint in Suggestion That Bone Knitting Needle May Profitably Be Employed.

The hint contained in our sketch will be found very useful for measuring liquids by drops, such as medicines that have to be taken in quantities of so many drops, photographic materials, etc., etc.

It merely consists of a portion of a bone knitting needle run through the center of the cork so that the head and part of the needle itself are immersed in the liquid. When the cork is withdrawn from the bottle, the moisture adhering to the needle will run down and drip from it, and in this way drops can be easily and accurately measured with little trouble, the head of the needle being from time to time inserted in the liquid until the required number of drops has been obtained.

Parasols.

A pretty conceit of the season is to have the points of the new parasol—which almost every one is tempted to buy—all covered with tiny ribbon or chiffon buds, matching the parasol in color and made by twisting up a piece of the material and tying it round with a silk cord. Almost all girls know how to make these ribbon buds, and they will find that a rather plain parasol may be made most attractive by fastening one on each of the points.

AT ALL DRUG STORES

England Copied From America.

The American system of lettergrams is responsible for an innovation which has been recently put into operation in England by the postoffice authorities by which the advantage of the delivery of a letter on Sunday is secured at the expense of a trifling fee. It is simply necessary to write on the envelope: "To be telephoned on Sunday," and adds an extra half-cent of postage for every 30 words or fraction thereof. Then the postal clerk at the receiving office calls up the person addressed by telephone and conveys the message without leaving the postoffice. If enough postage is included, the same message may be delivered by telephone to a number of different parties in the same city.

RUBE AEROPLANED IN EIGHTH FRAME AND SPINNERS WON

Base on Balls And Six Hits For Nine Bases Sewed up Game For Greenville Bunch Yesterday—Game Protested by Doyle on Account of Umpire's Ruling.

Rube Eldridge pitched seven splendid innings of ball yesterday afternoon, but in the eight aviated and it was all over—all except the batting, shouting and exulting of Greenville as six runners crossed the plate and sewed up the game. In the ninth to make victory beyond any question, or as Catcher Kite expressed it, "to break the tie," two more runs were added. The Patriots had made a run in the third and another in the sixth, but these were worth nothing except to keep up the Patriots' record of not having been shut out this season.

The game started off well. Blackstone was on the mound for the visitors, and in the first two innings he did not allow a hit. In the third Lowman led off with a single, was advanced to second by Spero, and scored on Rickard's neat hit to center field. In the sixth Doyle went to first on a hit. Fuller singled and sent Doyle to second. Clapp was out on a foul to catcher. Then Doak lined out a pretty drive over Ochs' head, scoring Doyle from second and advancing Fuller to third. The side was retired on Doak's attempt to pilfer second.

Rube was sailing along beautifully. He had allowed a hit in every inning but the second, but as nobody had gotten past second, the fans thought there was no cause for worry. In the eighth Smith sent Griffin in to bat for Ochs. Spero was embarassed by having a stranger in the game and gave him a free pass to first. Then the batting started in earnest and did not stop until Griffin came back to bat again. Six runs and a like number of hits for a total of nine bases were the awful results of this eighth spasm. Two more hits, a man hit by a pitched ball and two runs were the outcome of the next inning.

In Greensboro half of the ninth, Clapp ran from second to third on a muffed infield fly hit by Corwin with Doak on first, but Umpire Nugent required Clapp to go back to second, although Clapp had started after the ball struck the fielder's mit and made it safely after that. On account of this ruling, Manager Doyle gave notice of a protest of the game, and the game was finished under the protest. The decision could hardly have changed the result, since Clapp had no opportunity of moving a base, but died on second.

The fielding of the Patriots was errorless and Eldridge had gilt-edge support throughout the contest. The game was featured by the fast and snappy fielding of the locals. The game was fielding of the locals, the hitting of "Chic" Doak for the locals, and the batting of Sharp, Smith, Blackstone, Doak and Kite for the visitors.

DIAMOND DUST

Where They Play Today.

Greensboro at Charlotte.
Greenville at Winston.
Spartanburg at Anderson.

Among the Hornets today.

Will go down and show the folks who "support the league" the genuine article of baseball.

Pitchers seem to be highly sensitive sort of folks; they can't bear an error behind or close decision of the umpire.

There is no telling how many runs Clancey's men would have gotten if they hadn't stopped to catch a train at the end of the sixth.

Yesterday was a special day for colored people at the ball game and quite a number turned out to see the game. The right field bleachers was a mixture of ebony and chocolate complexions.

President Brandt announces that a grand stand will soon be finished for colored people and they will have every attention and convenience at the park.

Today and tomorrow the Patriots will be in Charlotte. Friday and Saturday they will be in Winston-Salem. The first three days of next week Lave Cross will bring his Hornets up from Charlotte for three games.

TWINS WON LAST OF SERIES FROM THE KELLYITES

Greenville, S. C., June 13.—The Twins won easily from the locals this afternoon 10 to 1, by six scratchy hits and two errors in the fifth inning netting 7 runs. Boyle pitched good ball and held the locals down to only four hits. A single and a double in the third gave the Kellyites their one run. The game was called at 5 o'clock to allow the visitors to catch the train for Winston, where they play tomorrow.

FINAL GAME OF SERIES CAPTURED BY THE HORNETS

Spartanburg, S. C., June 13.—With both sides playing very poor the Hornete won, 8 to 6. If the fielding had been better the game would probably have been exciting and hard fought, though the result would have been the same as the Charlotte aggregation had the best in bunching hits. Only one run of the game was earned.

Carriage Driver in Drunken Condition Cared For by Horse

A carriage driven by Sam Haith stopped in front of the Telegram office last night shortly after midnight and after it had stood some time it was discovered that the driver was asleep. The task of awakening the driver was undertaken, but after several attempts it was decided that the negro was not in his normal condition and the police were notified. Policeman Jones was soon on the scene and after a number of rough shakes and loud calls Sam was aroused He said that he had been drinking, but it was evident that he had been overdrinking, or had been doped on cocaine. However, he was "something" to wake up. He stated that he could not remember where he was at last, further than he was driving along the street. He was told to get home and not allow himself to be caught in that condition again while on duty.

He was still confused in his words and acts, but relying upon the wisdom of his good horse, the negro successfully blew into the harbor of refuge known as the stable and completed his much-needed sleep. All the credit for the care of one drunk and the prevention of any accident, however, belongs to a wise and sagacious horse.

If the blanket bought at the beginning of the winter need washing dissolve a quarter of a pound of rock fuller's earth in boiling water and add sufficient cold water to cover blankets, and let them steep in this over night.

The next morning squeeze out and wash in the usual way. By adopting this method all oil in the wool will be removed and less soap required. The result will be beautifully white and soft and fleecy blankets.

New Use for Cornmeal.

To keep your hands smooth and white, do not buy lotions and cold creams, but try plain cornmeal, mixed with a small quantity of salt. You will find it is most effective.

The Milk Bottle.

Milk bottles are washed most easily if filled with cold water and emptied. Later rinse with soapsuds and then with scalding water.
